Mr. Hays.

Dear Sirs, I herewith enclose you one dollar, your price, (as I am informed,) as a fee compensation for sending to Author, copy rights according to an act of Congress.

The work, which I claim to be the author of, is described as follows: Two interest tables for practical use, the one for simple & the other for compound, marked Table first & table second. These tables are so constructed that table first shows the simple interest on any sum from two cents to $1000, & by the help of the table it can be found for any other sum. Table second, shows the amount compound interest for 6 years. These tables when ready for use are pasted on tin or wood, on either side, made in a circular form, surrounded by a hoop: through the center of the wood or tin, & also the tables, passes a small pin, at each end of which, on either side of the board or tin, each table, is fastened a movable index, on which marked a scale of time, years, months & days.

These tables are so constructed, that by moving the index to any sum desired to find the interest of, the interest is readily pointed out by it for years months and days on table first, & the amount compound interest by table second. Also accompanying these tables, is a small pamphlet giving a full description of the tables and their use; the title page of which reads as follows.

This sheet describes a valuable set of tables for simple and compound interest, on a new and improved plan, entitled Ready interest computers at 6 per cent. These tables are so constructed that the simple interest of any sum may be found by table first & the amount of any sum by table second, with one fifth of the amount of labour usually required, and without errors.

Forward me a certified copy of security as soon as may be for the work is now ready waiting for the press.

Yours Truly
Wm. B. Leavitt.

ing and communicating truth, are certainly a desideratum. The conservative idea of restoring the old practice of committing to memory mere words, without an adequate knowledge of their meaning, is absurd in the extreme. There would as much practical benefit result from it as there would for a beginner in arithmetic to commit to memory all the fundamental rules, and then be required to solve a problem involving all the elementary principles of these rules, without any previous knowledge of the science.

In the cultivation of the mind, it is of primary importance that correct and systematic habits of thinking be formed. The formation of these habits depends, in a great measure, on the manner in which scholars are taught English grammar. A thorough knowledge of this science can only be obtained by the use of a judicious text-book, with a suitable variety of appropriate examples for illustration.

Parsing and a practical application of the principles of grammar, in the hands of a skilful instructor, may be made powerful instruments in preparing children and youth to understand perfectly whatever they read, and, in this way, to acquire many useful ideas, thus cultivating and expanding the various faculties of the mind. That this humble effort may be the means of giving a taste for literary pursuits, of enhancing the value of useful instruction, and of advancing the interests of human education, is the sincere desire of the author. D. H. S.

Somerset Bridge, N. H., June 1, 1846.

TO TEACHERS.

It is intended, that the beginner in grammar shall commence with Lesson II, on page 11, learn and apply the noun, learning only one lesson at a time. Besides parsing the nouns which he will find in the Examples as they are applied in the Form of Parsing, he will learn and answer the questions subjoined to each lesson. Learn Lesson III in the same manner. In Lesson IV, the article is introduced. The scholar will find and name all the nouns and articles in the same manner as in the preceding lessons. In Lesson V, he will name the nouns, articles, and adjectives. Thus the pupil will dispose of each succeeding lesson, advancing step by step until he has learned all the parts of speech, one at a time, and the same time has been applying what he had previously learned. When he learns the interjection, on page 22, he will learn Lesson I. He will thus continue through the modifications of the parts of speech, applying his knowledge at every step of his advancement, learning something new in every lesson.

In Syntax, the scholar will continue to parse the examples in the grammar, applying the Rules and Notes in the lessons in succession in the same manner that he did in Etymology. The Rules for Spelling, in Orthography, commencing on page 7, should be learned. These may be assigned as an occasional lesson, say, once a week, instead of one of the ordinary lessons, correcting the errors in spelling subjoined to each Rule. The student should be exercised occasionally on the examples of False Syntax on page 140. Scholars should be taught to correct the errors they commit in conversation, and how words are derived from one another, such as adjectives from nouns, nouns from adjectives, and the like, to change the singular into the plural, to change the solemn style into the familiar, to tell the meaning of words by naming their corresponding synonyms, and to show the relation of sentences by pointing out the particles of connection.

ENGLISH GRAMMAR.

GENERAL DEFINITIONS.

SECTION I.

1. GRAMMAR is the art of speaking and writing any language with propriety.
2. ENGLISH GRAMMAR is the art of speaking and writing the English language with propriety.
3. The general divisions of Grammar are Orthography, Etymology, Syntax, and Prosody.
4. Orthography explains the nature and properties of letters, their formation into syllables, and the true manner of spelling words.
5. Etymology explains the various modifications of the parts of speech, their classification, and the derivation of words from their primitives.
6. Syntax is the proper construction of words into sentences and phrases.
7. Prosody explains the principles of punctuation, enunciation, figures, and versification.

PART I.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

SECTION II.

8. Orthography explains the nature and properties of letters, their formation into syllables, and the true manner of spelling words.
9. A letter is the representative of a simple articulate sound.

ABRIDGMENT OF THE ANALYTICAL GRAMMAR

OF THE

ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

BY DYER H. SANBORN, A. M.,
Prof. of Math., Nat., and Nat. Science in the N. H. Conference Seminary
AT NORTHFIELD.

"Grammar is to language what forms are to bodies;
None truly teaches the one without showing the other."

LESSON III.

ABSTRACT NOUNS.*

16. Abstract means drawn from or separate.

17. Nouns formed from adjectives or verbs, are called abstract nouns.

18. Words ending with ion, ness, ny, ty, cy, ee, and ment, are usually nouns.

19. Find the nouns in the parsing examples, give the reason why they are nouns, as I have done in the form of parsing.

FORM OF PARSING.

The word witness is a noun, because it is the name of one who testifies. You can remember it, because it ends with ness.

Example.—The solemn declaration of a witness is called testimony. Improvement depends on application. Peace and harmony, justice and goodness, piety and morality, promote the prosperity of a nation. Antimony, acrimony, ceremony, accuracy, fluency, duty, judgment, existence, righteousness.

Questions.—What does abstract mean? 16. What are called abstract nouns? 17. Repeat 18! What directions for parsing? 19. Why is the word witness a noun? How can you remember that the word witness is a noun?

LESSON IV.

ARTICLE.†

20. Letters are divided into vowels and consonants.

* For a fuller explanation of Abstract Nouns, the student is referred to the

At least nine lectures will be delivered in each week.

That students may have, to some extent, the advantages to be derived from attendance in an office, Professor Parker will give instruction respecting the preparation of Pleadings, and other legal instruments.

Professor Parsons and Judge Cushing will give instruction, if desired, in relation to Parliamentary Practice.

Moot Courts will be holden on Tuesday and Thursday of each week.

The Law Library contains about 13,000 volumes ; and text-books are furnished, without charge, for the use of the students. They have the use also of the Public or College Library, containing about 55,000 volumes ; and are admitted to all the courses of Lectures delivered gratuitously to the Undergraduates in the University.

Students may enter the School at any stage of their professional studies or mercantile pursuits.

The studies are arranged for a course of two years ; and those of each term, with reference to a course commencing with that term, so that gentlemen who are beginning the study of the law may, at each term, enter upon branches suitable for them.

The next Academical year will begin August 30th, 1849 ; six weeks after Commencement, which will be at the close of the next term, Wednesday, July 18th.

Study for the period of eighteen months in this Institution ; or for twelve months here, and six months in any other Law Institution having authority to confer degrees ; or for one year here, after admission to the bar of any State, preceded by study for the term of one year ; entitles the student to the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

Fees, $ 50 a term, and $ 25 for half, or any smaller fraction of a term.

A bond in the sum of $ 200 from some person resident in Massachusetts, or a deposit of $ 150 with the Steward, is required, to secure the payment of College dues.

Application for further information, or for admission, may be made to either of the Professors, at Cambridge.

Whereas, all would have been well. But as it is now recorded, (according to your certificate sent) it is dated in Nov. 19th a date which is about 8 months later than the date of my application!

The design of this letter to you is, sir, to inquire whether it may not be just, proper and consistent with circumstances, for you to change the date of that record back^{to} that period or about that period, when my application was sent to your office? For you will readily perceive, Sir, that your record as it is now dated, is, strictly speaking, of no avail in securing my right, and that through no fault or neglect of mine.

Permit me to hope, dear Sir, that you will take into consideration the great consequence of this matter to me, and do all to rectify this error which the most favorable construction of your duty will permit. That work cost me years of severe toil and study, and I am quite too much dependent on its avail.

Castleton: N. H. Jan'y 2. 1850.

To R. Hatch, Esq.

Sir,

Being at Claremont a few days since, Yours of Nov. 19 was handed me by Mr. Ide, to whose care it was directed (Mr. Ide is one of the publishers of the "First Lessons").

It is much to be regretted that my letter applying for a copy right was wrongly directed - nevertheless I did not direct it until after the most careful inquiry. If, however, the letter had been immediately passed to your hands, as (I think) I requested therein, all would have been well. But as it is now recorded, (according to your certificate sent) it is dated in Nov. 19th. a date which is about 8 months later than the date of my application!

The design of this letter to you is, sir, to inquire whether it may not be just, proper and consistent with circumstances, for you to change the date of that record back ^{to} that period or about that period, when my application was sent to your office? For you will readily perceive, Sir, that your record as it is now dated, is, strictly speaking, of no avail in securing my right, and that through no fault or neglect of mine.

Permit me to hope, dear Sir, that you will take into consideration the great consequence of this matter to me, and do all to rectify this error which the most favorable construction of your duty will permit. That work cost me years of severe toil and study, and I am quite too much dependent on its avails.

The application was made by me in season, and at that time it was impossible for me or any one at Claremont to ascertain who the "Clerk of the Dist. Court of N. H." was, as a new Administration were just entered into power, and a change in officers was to be apprehended. But to make the matter sure, we sent to the former clerk (according to the N. H. Register, printed at Concord) requesting in the letter (I think) that if the office had passed to other hands, he would transfer the application accordingly. What more could we do? - My letter also enclosed another.

Please drop me a line, sir, at Castleton, Vt. - where I have resided since last June, - with advice - And should you finally deem an alteration in your record impossible, - allow me to hope that the matter may ever remain, as it now is, a profound secret inter nos.

I am, very respectfully, Yrs &c

Joffrey June 7-1850.

Dear Sir-

To Albert R. Hotch Esq.
Clerk of the District Court for N.H.

The accompanying map is a correct copy of the production of my own observations & plan - and is designed to represent the town of Joffrey N.H. - in lots as originally laid out - together with all the natural ponds - besides others - The Centocook River with all its tributaries down from the mountain which constitutes the formation of that river. The map also sets forth the east view of the Monadnock Mountain so far as that mountain is within the bounds of Joffrey - and it ^{will} be seen at once - that the map represents not only all the highways which the town has - but the location of all the dwelling houses out of the villages - with a house either one or two story as the same actually are - Now after giving place for all the public buildings &c. in the villages - my limits would not allow space for all the private dwellings & machanic's shops &c. With these brief remarks - I will add that believing as I do - that I am justly entitled to a copy - right of my map - and I have sent you this copy as a deposit in your office in conformity with the law which authorizes copy right's to be secured - Therefore I trust that you will - without unnecessary delay - send me by mail such certificate as is usually given in similar cases - which will secure to me a copy right - I forward this to you by Peter Leighton Esq. - who is now occupying a seat in the house of Rep^t at Concord - and have made arrangement with him to pay all the expense both too & at your office - and should there be any neglect on his part - you will please to inform me of it. The blank in the border at the bottom is to be filled with the date of copy right secured - and you will much oblige - by filling the blank as a done - Your humble serv^t J.D. Gibbs

THE CALL OF MERCY.

Words by J. HALL.

11s.

Music by G. PARKINSON.

Moderato.

4. Come then, sinner come, and no longer delay,
Lest you may be found in the great judgment day
On the left of the throne, and the lamb for you slain
Should bid you depart to the regions of pain,

5. Where the fire is not quenched, and the worm never dies,
And you have to say as eternity flies,
The summer is ended, the harvest is gone,
My soul lost forever in sorrow must mourn.

WHERE ALL ORDERS WILL MEET WITH PROMPT ATTENTION.

M. A. & K. F. Worcester,
NASHUA, N. H.

One Cake of WORCESTERS' World-Renowned
DRY HOP YEAST,
is warranted to raise more flour than two cakes of any other manufacture now in the market.

DIRECTIONS.

Dissolve the cake in a tea-cup of blood warm water, add Flour enough to make a batter. Set it in a warm place until it rises, or looks spongy, then proceed the same as with liquid Yeast. Care must be taken to keep the Dough in a warm place while rising. Should it ever occur that the Bread tastes of the Yeast, it will be conclusive that there has been too much used for the quantity of Flour.

WORCESTERS'

WORLD-RENOWNED

Dry Hop Yeast.

EVERY FAMILY SHOULD USE THIS CELEBRATED YEAST.

It presents superior claims for the following, among many reasons that might be given, viz:

- 1st. Because it is purely vegetable, and conducive to health.
- 2d. Because it will make more delicious and better Bread than any other known article now in use
- 3d. Because it is cheaper by one half than any other Yeast in the world.
- 4th. Because it is infallible in raising with the least possible trouble, Flour Bread, Cake, Doughnuts, Buckwheats, and all else where Yeast is used.
- 5th. Because one cake of Worcesters' Yeast is warranted to raise more Flour than two cakes of any other manufacture now in the market.

Directions for Use.

ONE CAKE IS SUFFICIENT FOR EIGHT QUARTS OF FLOUR.

Dissolve the cake in a tea-cup of blood warm water, add Flour enough to make a batter. Set it in a warm place, until it rises or looks spongy, then proceed the same as with liquid Yeast. Care must be taken to keep the Dough in a warm place while rising. Should it ever occur that the Bread tastes of the Yeast, it will be conclusive that there has been too much used for the quantity of Flour.

NOTE. The Directions must be followed, to insure success. If the first trial fail, try the second, and the third, if need be. THE FAULT IS YOURS, NOT IN THE YEAST.

The extreme favor which this Yeast has met with from all classes where once introduced, gives the Proprietors confidence in giving a more extended circulation to their goods. Having enlarged and much improved their Laboratory, are prepared to supply and fill all orders, and in all cases warrant satisfaction.

For sale by Grocers, everywhere.

I herewith send the title of a book, which I wish to have secured according to Law.

In the other page —

I perceived by the U.S. Laws, that they fees wanted be sixty cents for recording, and the same for a copy — As it would be different to send twenty cents (silver) in that letter, I have sent one dollar and fifty cents which will pay the cost of both letters. — Should wish please

Respected friend

I am about reprinting an Edition of Merrill's Arithmetic, which I am Proprietor of, the work is to be done at the Press of Geo. Samson Esq of Exeter, who wrote me yesterday that it would be necessary that the certificate be had from your office immediately and that if I could enclose a line ~~request~~ that he would endeavour to have the Certificate procured without my making a journey to Boston by way of Exeter.

The Copy right to the work I purchased of the Estate of Simeon Briggs Jun, since I have had a careful revision of said work, and had the same corrected, & some additions made to ~~the same~~ ^{it}, which I wish to have secured in my own name - The title page will I suppose be presented to your office by Geo Samson Esq of Exeter or by his direction, Should it then be necessary that I should be at your Office myself I will attend to it personally.

Should any trouble on your part other than making the certificate be necessary, I will pay the same when I come to town, I mean only, by this that you find it necessary to write me on the subject I should be happy to remunerate for all trouble.

I am Respectfully
Yours friend

The study of Grammar has been considered as an object of great importance by the wisest men in all ages: but, like other sciences, it has often been involved in mystery, and perplexed with needless difficulties. The merit of any performance on this subject, must, in a great measure, depend upon the method of illustration and arrangement. — Adams' Latin Grammar.

As when some peasant, who, to treat his lord,
Brings out his little stock, and decks his board
With what his ill-stored cupboard will afford,
With awkward bows, and ill placed rustic airs,
To make excuses for his feast, prepares;
So we with tremor, mingled with delight,
View the bright audience which appears to night;
And, conscious of its meanness, hardly dare
To bid you welcome to our homely fare.
Should your applause a confidence impart,
To calm the fears that press the timid heart,
Some hopes I cherish; in your smiles I read them,
Whate'er our faults, your candor can exceed them.
